

MRS. MOHR FACES 'OTHER WOMAN' ACROSS COURT

Follows Intently Wit-ness's Tale of Murder Ride.

ATTACK ON PAST BARRED BY JUDGE

Miss Burger Says She Saw No
Assailants—Didn't Know
She Was Shot.

By F. F. VAN DE WATER.
(The Tribune to the Tribune.)

There was no one in the courtroom today who once loved Dr. C. Franklin Mohr and still bears his name faced the narrow width of the courtroom today the brilliant girl who as secretary had supplanted her and had been shot down across the murdered physician's body.

For two hours Miss Emily G. Burger, dark-eyed and blue-eyed, sat on the witness stand under the ordeal of direct and cross-examination into the death of her "very dear friend," Dr. Mohr. For two hours a plain little woman, her face weary and livid, sat among her attorneys and peered from beneath her broad black hat at the woman her husband had loved.

There was no expression in the face of Mrs. Elizabeth F. Mohr, charged with having engaged three negroes to kill her husband and the girl she married so carefully.

State Springs a Surprise.

Before the state had sprung their surprise and had introduced their best witness almost in the preliminary stages of the trial, Mrs. Mohr had seated herself with her lawyers. From the time the tall, stinging girl entered the courtroom Mrs. Mohr never spoke, but sat with head bowed forward, intent on the woman who was no longer her rival.

Both were dressed in deepest mourning—the wife in the sober broadcloth but she was very since the trial began, the girl in a loose cloak of black, with demure at the neck and wrists. Mrs. Burger's hat had a transparent veil, with a jaunty cockade of feathers. A long flowing veil was flung back from her handsome face, vivid in its coloring. Her Auburn hair was pulled back, hiding the scar where the first bullet entered.

Mrs. Mohr's face was putty-colored and drawn. Only her dark eyes and the shadow of the deep dimple in her smiling chin relieved her pallor.

Avoids Gaze of Mrs. Mohr.

Not once during her testimony did the girl mention the name of the woman who watched her unceasingly, only rarely did she turn her eyes in her direction for a hasty glance. Apparently she was extremely nervous, but her voice as she described and re-described the murder was clear and unhurried.

From ten minutes of twelve to one o'clock she remained on the stand. After the hour and a half adjournment for lunch, she returned and was released from her ordeal at 3:25. Before she left the courtroom, the defense served her with a subpoena to return later as their witness. Then for the first time she broke down and wept, while her sister, Mrs. George W. Rook, tried to comfort her.

Before she testified the state presented several witnesses who arrived at the scene of the shooting soon after it occurred. These were Henry Sharp Chaffee, of Providence and Nayatt, who was driving the first car to be stopped by Heals, the physician's negro chauffeur, after the murder; Miss Celia M. Cross, of Providence, a trained nurse, who was in the car with Chaffee, and who accompanied the dying doctor back to the Rhode Island State Hospital, and Mrs. Edna M. Campbell, who took Miss Burger to the same hospital in her husband's runabout.

Confessions Raise Fight.

Following Miss Burger, the day's proceedings devolved into a bitter fight between attorneys for the defense and the state regarding the admission as evidence of the alleged confessions to Chief Police Inspector O'Neill of the negroes, Cecil Victor Brown and Henry H. Spellman. Judge Stearns ruled that they should be admitted. The third negro, George X. Heals, the chauffeur, has turned state's evidence.

A gasp went through the courtroom as Assistant Attorney General Abbott Phillips called, "Emily G. Burger." The girl hurried to the stand. Other witnesses have been examined standing. Because the state explained she was still weak from the effects of her wounds she was allowed to sit.

In a level voice she told of the events leading up to the murder on the dark Washington Road. She left the doctor's office on the night of August 31 at 10:30. At her right on the rear seat of the physician's car sat Dr. Mohr. On the left his Alreald dog snuggled. Heals was alone in front.

Chauffeur Stops in Ambush.

"In a dark spot on the Washington Road Heals stopped the car," she continued. "He drew it up on the right hand side of the road and said something about the engine being out of order. He lifted the left hand side of the hood, after turning off the headlights and switching on the side lights, and sent over the engine."

She paused for a moment, and then went on, perfectly calmly: "I heard an explosion. I thought it was the engine backing. Then Heals came around to my side of the car and said: 'Oh, my God! I thought that the car was on fire. Then I stood up and started to jump out. The doctor hadn't said anything, and I pulled at his left coat sleeve. He fell over on his side and lay still. Then I felt something queer behind my ear."

"I was shot twice," she added, simply. "I don't remember what happened then. I got out of the car, but I don't know how. Then I remember Heals grabbing me and pulling me over to the left side of the road. I lay there for a few moments, and then I heard him say something to John J. Fitzgerald, who sat next to her."

Did Not See Assailants.

She did not see the assailants. She did not even see the flashes of the revolvers.

Arthur Cushing, chief attorney for Mrs. Mohr, then began the long cross-examination. He was the accused woman's lawyer in the cross-suits for divorce filed by her and Dr. Mohr a year ago. Throughout his questioning he tried to bring out the exact relations of Miss Burger with the dead physician. This effort was opposed vigorously by the state.

"I was going to Newport with the doctor," the girl said, in answer to his question. "I had been his housekeeper there for just about a week."

"You had never been there before," said Mr. Cushing, asked, significantly. Attorney General Rice objected, but Judge Stearns sustained the question.

"Yes, I had," Miss Burger said, at last.

Long the Doctor's Companion.

Despite persistent opposition by the prosecution, Mr. Cushing also drew from her the fact that she had been there a dozen times in the last year, that she had known the physician for around a year, that she had been accused to go to his office at least once a week for some time, and that she had gone to hotels in Providence, Fall River, Newport, North Scituate and East Greenwich with him.

"Just how close were your relations with Dr. Mohr?" Cushing asked.

The girl hesitated for a moment. "He was my very dear friend," she said, softly.

The fixed stare of Mrs. Mohr followed the girl as she left the courtroom at the noon recess. When her stylish figure had disappeared through the door the older woman turned and whispered something to John J. Fitzgerald, who sat next to her.

During the discussion of the admission of the alleged confessions of Brown and Spellman, which followed the recess, the jurors were excused. Chief O'Neill took the stand, but despite the accusations of Lewis and Fitzgerald, both of whom tried to prove that he had used "third degree" methods, he remained unshaken.

DYING FATHER'S WISH OPENS CELL

Son, a Convict, Allowed

wey's Order.

ASSEMBLYMAN ADDS HIS VOICE TO PLEA

Humane Act, Glad It Was Done, Says Warden—Prisoner Went to Freeport, L. I.

That he might see his father, thought to be dying, Miles Rhodes, who is serving a four-year term in Sing Sing, was taken in an automobile to Freeport, Long Island, last Sunday night. Assemblyman Thomas A. McWhinney interceded with Warden Kirchwey and secured permission for the prisoner to make the trip.

Rhodes was allowed a half hour with his father, who had been ill with pneumonia for a few days. Last evening the sick man was still alive and constantly calling for his son, Miles, who remained his favorite son in spite of the prison sentence for misconduct as an attaché of the Nassau County jail.

At the prison last night Dr. Kirchwey said it was true that Rhodes left here in the custody of Mr. Miller, the deputy warden, and returned safely. It was one of those cases where opportunity existed to do a humane act, and it was done. I am glad of it. The young man certainly was not injured.

"I had hoped that the matter would not become public because of the publicity that it brings the family. Whether others will be permitted to make similar visits will have to be determined by future developments and by the facts in each case."

(From a Staff Correspondent of the Tribune.)

Albany, Jan. 12.—Assemblyman McWhinney, of Nassau County, declared tonight that Miles Rhodes, taken from prison to see his dying father, Sanderson Rhodes, of Freeport, had done one of the most humane acts in his life.

"Here was this dying man," he said, "I appealed to me to get his son from Sing Sing so he could see him before he died. I would have called on Governor Whitman, necessary. I have never first telephoned to Sing Sing prison and told the circumstances and the request was granted."

Osborne Trial Ordered

To Be Held on January 24

Thomas Mott Osborne will be placed on trial January 24 unless the plans of District Attorney Weeks are blocked. A notice calling upon the former warden to appear before Supreme Court Justice Young at White Plains tomorrow to plead was telephoned yesterday to George Gordon Battle and Huntington W. Merchant, counsel for Mr. Osborne. Robert S. Brewster, his bondsman, also was notified.

An objection to the District Attorney's plans may arise in a possible request from Mr. Osborne's counsel for a postponement of the trial, on the ground that Mr. Battle has been unable to secure a copy of the grand jury minutes "so as to learn that there will be no more dilatory play on the part of the prosecution," said Mr. Battle yesterday. "Mr. Osborne has shown himself to be a man of good character and the foundation charges, and the delay has been solely on the part of the prosecution."

EAST WIND HIS ILL WIND

Air Currents Determine When Robeson Must Close Factory.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 12.—An east wind and an ill wind are synonymous henceforth so far as James Robeson is concerned. An injunction granted here today makes them so.

Robeson has a factory on the eastern outskirts of the village of South River, one of the factory's uncommercialized products is a heavy smoke of none too pleasant pungency. After Robeson had tried unsuccessfully to divert the fumes by means of mechanical devices, the South River Board of Health applied to the New Jersey State Board of Health for an order to close the factory.

The court saw only one solution. Whenever the wind blows out of the east, he ordered, Robeson must shut down his plant.

RUPERT HUGHES A CAPTAIN

Playwright Appointed by Governor to 69th Infantry, N. G. N. Y.

Rupert Hughes, playwright and author, has been appointed captain in the 69th Infantry, N. G. N. Y., by Governor Whitman. He will be appointed to command Company H, Captain Hughes served in the National Guard from 1897 until 1908, when he resigned as a captain in the 69th.

Major Edgar S. Jennings, of the 3d Infantry, has been chosen colonel to succeed William W. Wilson, appointed brigadier general of the Fourth Brigade, Colonel Jennings joined the regiment as a private in 1891. He was first sergeant and lieutenant in the Spanish-American War.

LAMAR ATTACKS INDICTMENT

In Demurrer Asserts There Is Nothing in Munitions Plot Charges.

David Lamar, Wall Street promoter, filed a demurrer yesterday in the Federal Court to the indictment found against him and seven others several weeks ago for alleged conspiracy to provoke strikes in American munition plants. He asserts there is nothing in the charges for which he can be held answerable.

He contends further that the indictment does not apprise him with reasonable certainty of the precise nature of the accusation sufficient to allow him to prepare his defense.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Representative Buchanan's impeachment charges against United States Attorney Marshall of New York went back to the House Judiciary Committee again today, over the opposition of Chairman Webb, who declared the committee made two futile attempts to find evidence upon which the charges are based. The indications are that unless Mr. Buchanan produces proofs which the committee can act there will be no developments.

Carnegie Golf Balls Stolen.

Found with golf balls, alleged to have been stolen from Andrew Carnegie's links at Mount Hope, in their possession, two young men were arrested yesterday in Yonkers. They gave their names as Herman Meadler and William Murray, of 314 New Main Street, Yonkers. They were turned over to the Greenburgh police when it was learned that the golf clubs in that town had been looted of golf balls.

Morgan to Serve Another Year.

J. P. Morgan was reelected a member of the Federal Reserve Council of this district at a meeting of the directors of the Federal Reserve Bank, of New York, yesterday. The present officers were also reelected.

TO DEPORT BLACK FIGHTER

British Also Fine Aaron Brown for Part in Passport Fraud.

London, Jan. 12.—Aaron Brown, an American negro fighter known as "Dixie Kid," has been fined $50 or six weeks' imprisonment, and also ordered deported as undesirable, and Bob Spencer, a featherweight pugilist, has been fined $100 or three months in jail. They were charged with making false statements to enable Spencer to obtain an American passport.

Brown and Spencer were arrested in London in the middle of December. It was alleged that Brown signed Spencer's application for a passport, vouching for Spencer's American citizenship. Spencer is said to be a British subject.

BRAVE HEN SHOOT A FOX

Also, Carrington Phelps, Winsted Man Says, Catches Deer in His Arms.

Winsted, Conn., Jan. 12.—Carrington A. Phelps, short story writer, who is at North Colebrook hunting for material for magazine articles, caught a deer yesterday in his arms. The deer, weighing about 150 pounds, was being pursued by dogs and was almost exhausted. Phelps climbed his big arms about her neck and held on. When her husband released the deer Mrs. Phelps objected because she wanted the prisoner for a pet.

R. Caldwell, of New Britain, bothered by foxes making raids on his poultry, rigged up in the henry yard a loaded gun with string attachments. The fox prowled around again and the hens, in fright, ran about the yard. Caldwell aimed over the contrivance, discharging the gun just when the fox was in range. She mortally wounded the fox.

TWO REAR ADMIRALS GAG RULE TARGETS

Daniels Asserts Fiske and Knight Are Propagandists.

(From The Tribune Bureau.)

Washington, Jan. 12.—Secretary Daniels admitted today that he had refused permission to Rear Admiral Fiske and Knight to speak in public or write for publication on the ground that they are "propagandists." Although acknowledging that his power is limited to the prohibition of articles and addresses which are submitted to him for approval, the Secretary stated that he had informed Rear Admiral Fiske that he could not appeal to the public at this time, and that to submit articles to the department for approval would be useless.

Mr. Daniels said he had not read the articles recently published by Rear Admiral Fiske in "The North American Review," and that so far as he knew there was nothing objectionable in them. "Then you would have no hesitation in his publishing more articles of the same kind?" the Secretary was asked. "I have already said," Mr. Daniels replied, avoiding a direct reply, "that I do not believe naval officers ought to write for publication at this time, when the administration plans for defense are so evident."

The Secretary then was asked why he did not have the articles submitted to him, as usual, before prohibiting them. "You might as well ask me," he said, "why I forbid Admiral Fiske and Admiral Knight to speak before the Chicago Commercial Club without first reading their addresses."

"Exactly why?"

"Because Daniels Fiske and Knight, as everybody knows, are engaged in a propaganda. It is not their intention to discuss professional and technical questions. Knowing this, I have simply refused to let them do it."

AUSTRIA CANNOT TELL HOW PERSIA WAS SUNK

No Proof of U-Boat Torpedo. Charge Tells Lansing.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Baron Berich Zwiedinck, chargé of the Austro-Hungarian Embassy, laid before Secretary Lansing today information received by wireless from the Vienna Foreign Office, which it is said, had indirectly to do with the destruction of the British steamship Persia. It was denied, however, that the information was of use in learning the exact cause of the disaster.

Baron Zwiedinck was said to have asked Secretary Lansing what information was in the possession of the United States regarding the Persia. It was intimated that the charge had told the Secretary that he had heard nothing that would lead to the conclusion that an Austrian submarine had torpedoed the ship.

American Consul Kemp, at Marcellus, called today that the crew of the Persia had reached there and reported making affidavits to the British consular officials. The Vienna Foreign Office reported that the crew refused to give him any statements because they had already made affidavits to British officials. The State Department is waiting for the British government for the information they contain.

CALLS PRIESTS EXTORTIONERS

Dr. Keigwin Says Catholics in Cuba Do Nothing Except for Money.

"Some people look forward to the time when Catholics will absorb the Episcopalians and the Episcopalians will absorb the other faiths and believe that that is the way we will be brought back to the Catholic faith," said Dr. Edwin Keigwin, pastor of the West End Presbyterian Church, in an address at that church last evening. "But the Panama Missionary Congress proceeds along a line directly opposite to this. We cannot get vitality by attaching living organisms to a dead organism."

"I have been in Cuba and have seen the workings of the Roman Catholic Church. The priests do absolutely nothing for which they are not paid. The fees charged for performing marriages are so extortionate that the poor often is unable to pay and turns to immorality for this reason."

"The Roman Catholic Church has done absolutely nothing to evangelize the population of Latin America."

FLEE SCHOOL WHERE 21 DIED

Parochial Students in Panic After Crash Similar to One During Fire.

Peabody, Mass., Jan. 12.—The children of St. John's Parochial School, survivors of the fire which caused the deaths of twenty-one of their number on October 28, became panic-stricken again today and fled in disorder from the old high school building, where classes have been held recently. The cause of their fright was a crash that sounded like the boiler explosion which occurred during the fire. It was due to a collision between a freight engine and a boxcar in a nearby railroad yard.

Mary Fuller, ten years old, jumped from an upper window, landed on a lower roof, and dropping to the ground, was severely injured. Several of the children fainted and others became hysterical. Many rushed to their homes, alarming parents who had lost little ones in the fire, and solicited mothers besieged the schoolhouse for some time.

LEAVES DUMMY TO DO 17 YEARS

RILEY'S MEN BLOCKED PRISONER'S TRANSFER

"Haven't Slightest Hope He Will Return," Says Kirchwey, Ordering Investigation.

Propping up a dummy in his cell, Joan Kirshner, a long-term burglar, broke out of Sing Sing and escaped with several hours' start early yesterday.

He was not missed until the count was taken after the convicts were leaving the mess hall at 8 o'clock in the morning. Prison officers believe he had been gone six or eight hours before his absence was discovered.

Warden Kirchwey, who predicted the return of "Tough Tony" Mareno, who escaped and returned voluntarily two weeks ago, has no such hope about Kirshner. "I haven't the slightest belief that he will come back," said the new warden. "He had seventeen years ahead of him for burglary and only recently came out. This is not like Tony's case. Tony was a trusty. This is a plain break. They say escapes come three running off. This is the third attempt I have had and I hope the last." James Hill tried to get out last Friday, but was caught on the bakery roof.

Kirshner stuffed a prison suit with paper and left the dummy, with the knees crossed, propped up on the cot, holding a newspaper. The guards, looking through the cell door, took it to be the inmate reading.

The dummy set up, Kirshner went to the picture show on Tuesday. He concealed himself in the chapel somewhere, and when it was darkened and all the convicts were locked up for the night he sawed away a bar in the chapel window. Once he showed the one-inch steel bar out of place and squeezed through he had to drop about fifteen feet to the ground. Then it was an easy matter to sneak through the yard and so over the iron fence to the Hudson River bank. It would then be easy to get around the wall by leaping from one to another cake of ice jammed against the prison shore or swim in the icy water.

An alarm was sent to the New York and Westchester County police stations. Through a clerk's error it was first given out to the police that Louis Kirshner, of Kings County, was gone, but later a corrected alarm was sent out for Kirshner.

Mr. Kirshner is investigating the escape to determine if there was any negligence on any one's part. "If there is any leak in the discipline," he said, "we will try to block it," when asked if the escape would result in more stringent rules for keeping tabs on inmates.

According to Spencer Miller, the warden's secretary, Kirshner's name was placed by Warden Osborne on the draft sent to the Auburn prison, but was taken off by some one in Superintendent Riley's office.

MEMORIAL FOR MISS CAVELL

Concert to Raise Monument Fund To Be Given January 23.

A concert will be given Sunday afternoon, January 23, at the Hippodrome to provide funds for a memorial monument to Edith Cavell, the English nurse shot by the Germans at Brussels last October. The monument, designed by the Gorham Company, is to be erected in Paris in the Trocadero Gardens. It will be made of American granite and bronze and paid for by American subscriptions.

The Edith Cavell Memorial Fund, with headquarters at the National Park Bank, 214 Broadway, was begun by Lucien Henry, of Paris, a lifelong friend of President Poincaré and formerly tutor to the Duke of Clarence, the elder brother of King George V. Mr. Henry will make a short address in English and the rest of the program will be filled with concert numbers.

Mme. Lise Briss, of the Paris Opéra, will sing the "Marsellaise" in cantata. Miss Gertrude Prentiss has reserved the first public performance of her patriotic recitative, "The President's Message," for this occasion.

André Tardieu will play a violin solo and Camille Decres will be at the piano. Martial music will be played.

THREE BEERS ROUSE SUNDAY

Angry When Liquor Is Delivered at Home by Trick.

(By Telegraph to the Tribune.)

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 12.—When Billy Sunday to-night faced 11,000 persons he was angry. When a delegation of working girls presented to him a bouquet of flowers he told of a trick that had been played on him.

While the Sunday family was at supper a well dressed man came to the back door and left a package. "Ma," Sunday opened it and found three bottles of beer.

"I just wanted you to know what kind of dogs you have got here in Trenton," he said. "Never mind, that dirty booze gang will get theirs when I get going."

STUDENT KILLED IN CLASS BATTLE

U. of P. Freshman Crushed
Under Struggling Mass
—Another Dying.

(By Telegraph to the Tribune.)

Philadelphia, Jan. 12.—Five hundred young men fighting furiously in the annual bowl contest between freshmen and sophomores at the University of Pennsylvania suddenly stopped their struggle to-day as they found William Lifson, a freshman, lying crushed at the bottom of a mass of students, with his face stuck deep in the mud. Lifson died before he reached a hospital. A score of others were injured, some seriously.

MRS. ENO ORDERS RUMPCONVENTION

Hopes to Carry First District To-day and Retain Borough Chairmanship.

In the lull after the heavy firing on Tuesday along the suffrage battle front in Queens, during which police put an end to voting in the 1st District, Mrs. Alfred J. Eno, borough chairman, and Mark S. Feller, her attorney, held a three-hour council of war yesterday and planned to explode two mines in the enemy's trenches to-day.

The first will be an unadvertised convention in Long Island City, called by Mrs. M. D. Sturges, district leader and one of Mrs. Eno's lieutenants. Postcards to the Eno forces warning them to mobilize at a time and place which the cen will not make public were mailed last night, and arrangements completed for guards who will turn away all persons unable to show credentials as duly enrolled members of the Queens organization. And "duly enrolled," according to Mr. Feller, will mean those already on the list at Mrs. Eno's office or those with proper documents from the Manhattan headquarters. No others need apply.

If Mrs. Eno's plan for a Rump Parliament goes through, and she wins in the first district, she will have carried two of the four in Queens and will continue as borough chairman. The constitution making this provision for a tie.

If not, she will spring her next surprise by protesting against the elections in all districts, at the 2d, on the ground that the voters were not properly accredited. This will carry the fight to the floor of the state convention, and, as intimated by Mr. Feller yesterday, she may press this point to a settlement, even if elected.

"Voting in the 3d and 4th districts was scandalous," Mr. Feller said. "It gave outsiders a chance to cast their ballots without being checked up on the Queens members' list—expressly in contravention of the by-laws."

No demand for a new election, in the 2d District, carried by Mrs. Eno, will be made, however, as all voters, Mr. Feller's judgment, were properly accredited. As to Mrs. Eno's authority to hold a new convention to-day in the 1st, he explained that the by-laws required one within forty-eight hours. "Without giving notice to the public," he was asked.

"The constitution," he replied, "is silent on that point."

U. S. Takes Quarantine Control.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Quarantine of steamers at the Port of New York, it was announced here today, are to pass temporarily from state control under the supervision of the Federal Public Health Service, there to remain until the New York Legislature enacts a measure turning the station over absolutely to Federal control. The temporary arrangement was made at the suggestion of Governor Whitman. Dr. L. E. Cofer has been designated to take charge.
